

VICE PRESIDENTIAL RACE NARROWED

WEDNESDAY IS PLATFORM DAY AT CONVENTION

Party's Declaration of Principles Before Delegates

Cleveland, O., June 11.—The Republican platform on which President Coolidge will go to the polls in November, was completed early today by a "planning committee" of administration leaders for ratification by the national convention during the day.

Laboring all night long, fifteen men drafted the platform in its final form and throughout they closely followed the recommendations of President Coolidge. The document, to be confirmed first by the full committee of resolutions will probably be presented to the convention about three o'clock this afternoon.

The dominant issues were federal economy—reference to the saving of billions of dollars by the Republican administration in taxes and governmental expenditures—and endorsement of the Harding-Hughes-Coolidge world court proposal.

Cleveland, June 11.—Delegates to the Republican national convention assembled promptly for the second day's session.

Today the party's platform will be adopted, and it goes without saying that the declarations of principles desired by President Coolidge will be adopted. Insignificant delegates from Wisconsin reported a minority platform report, standing for everything that the Coolidge faction in the party opposes. This was promptly rejected. With the party platform out of the way, Thursday will be the president's day. Coolidge will be the only name placed in nomination. A formal vote will confirm him as the party's leader and the nominations and balloting for vice president will then follow.

The "progressive" planks included a declaration denouncing the Coolidge administration. "The great issue before the American people today is the control of government and industry by private monopoly," the Wisconsin platform said. "The usurpation in recent years by the federal courts of the power to nullify laws duly enacted by the legislative branch of the government is a plain violation of the constitution."

Other planks declared for immediate farm relief; denounced the naval oil reserve leases; pledged revision of the Esch-Cummins railroad act so as to place railroad valuations upon actual investment, with a declaration favoring public ownership; favored drastic reduction of present tariff rates; denounced the Mellon tax plan and declared in favor of high surtax rates, and favoring direct presidential elections.

Among the outstanding planks in the regular Republican platform presented to the convention today are the following:

Indorsement of the administrations of both the late President Harding and President Coolidge, and a tribute to President Harding, with a declaration "that he gave his life to the nation," a pledge to maintain the integrity of the budget system, and to continue President Coolidge's "policy of strict economy"; a pledge to tax reforms with revision of the new tax law "which purports to tax wealth severely, but in practice offers to the rich Isles of safety and of exemption"; a reference to the lack of unemployment with a comparison of conditions as they existed when President Harding went into office; a pledge to give to the farmer "all necessary government assistance in organizing and establishing a system for the co-operative marketing of agriculture products," and extension of government aid in "simplifying and cheapening our marketing and distributing machinery," a declaration in favor of a revision in the freight rate structure "with a view to reducing the rates on agricultural products," a pledge of adequate appropriations for the construction of good roads in furtherance of the federal highway act; a flat declaration in favor of law enforcement, broad enough to directly include the prohibition law; a declaration in favor of adequate national defense; a pledge to extend every aid, financial and otherwise, to the disabled veterans, and a flat indorsement of the Harding-Hughes world court proposal.

FLOOD OF 1913 OUT DONE IN LOSS BY DOWN POUR IN MANSFIELD

Mansfield, O., June 11.—The flood of 1913 was outdone in its disastrous effects, by the heavy downpour last evening. No lives have been reported lost but the damage to streets and basements cannot be estimated yet. Boats are still being used this morning in the lower parts of the city. Electric light sub stations are out of commission and the west part of the city is without water.

The greatest damage was reported by the American Cigar Company, whose basement was flooded, destroying thousands of dollars worth of tobacco. In some parts of the city the flood water came up to the mail boxes. No reports are in from the surrounding country. Many autos were caught in the flood. One family had to be carried out of an auto which was thought to be parked in a safe place.

PATERNITY WILL BE QUESTION IN FIGHT FOR MONEY

Dayton, June 11.—Mrs. Madeline Corby Morgan, pretty one time bride of a Detroit millionaire, is preparing to wage a legal battle in an effort to gain for her daughter a share of her former husband's millions.

The fight will center on the paternity of five year old Marie Theresa Corby, daughter of Mrs. Morgan, who has been living with her mother and Morgan at their home in Dayton at 212 Norman Avenue.

This is not the first time Marie has been the center of a controversy. Back in 1921, court proceedings were initiated by Mrs. Morgan, then Mrs. Corby, who was divorced from Thomas W. Corby, Detroit capitalist. During the suit, Corby repudiated Marie Theresa, asserting that he was not her father.

The divorce was granted and under the terms, Mrs. Corby received $50,000 under a prenuptial agreement.

Soon after Corby's death, an extensive search for a will was made by representatives of the United Trust Company, named administrator of the estate in probate court at Detroit.

In the absence of the will, Marie will be entitled to the entire estate, valued at over $4,000,000, Mrs. Morgan's attorney maintain unless it can be established that she is illegitimate. The legal battle will hinge upon this question.

The date set for hearing petitions and claims of nephews and nieces is July 9. Mrs. Morgan is expected to put in a claim in behalf of the child before that date.

COOLIDGE RAPPED BY THE JAPANESE

Tokio, June 11.—The Christian Laborer association's parade distributed handbills denouncing "Pontius Pilate and Calvin Coolidge" as "the world's two greatest cowards."

The "Great Forward society" distributed 50,000 handbills about the city, demanding a boycott of American goods.

The new cabinet was installed today. It is composed of Kato, premier; Shidehara, foreign affairs; Wakatsuki, home; Takarabe, navy; Ugaki, war; Takahashi, agriculture; Sano, commerce; Inukai, communications; Yokota, justice; Hamaouchi, finance; Sengoku, railroads; Okada, education.

SNAP SHOTS

A gift of $125,000 to Columbia University from George F. Baker, philanthropist, for the purchase of additional land to complete the athletic grounds known as Baker field, was announced at New York.

A smallpox quarantine was established about a 15-block section of Detroit in a determined effort to prevent any new outbreak of the smallpox epidemic, which is not under complete control.

Christian Missionary society, New York, was informed that one American missionary is known to have been killed and others are in danger in the Kwangsi province of China.

One hundred new missionaries to 18 foreign states were commissioned in New York at part of the annual conference of the Presbyterian board of foreign missions.

Ten masked men locked Owen C. Wingate, town marshal of Pablo, near Jacksonville, Fla., in the jail at that place, relieved him of his keys and seized a negro serving a sentence for an alleged attack upon a white woman there.

CROSSING TRAGEDY

Akron, O., June 11.—Anthony Tescud, 38, of Rittman, O., was killed and Mr. and Mrs. John Darosz, 49, of Akron, and their daughter, Sofia, 4, were seriously injured when Tescud's automobile was demolished by a Baltimore and Ohio freight train at Kenmore.

MONDELL MAKES SPEECH OPENING SECOND SESSION

Admonition Given To Keep Insurgents Out Of Congress.

Convention Hall, Cleveland, O., June 11.—Another admonition to Republicans to retire from congress the insurgents who have played havoc with administration policies and to elect in November a congress that is Republican "in principle as well as in name," opened the Republican national convention meeting in its second session here today.

It was delivered with great earnestness by Frank W. Mondell, of Wyoming, permanent chairman of the convention, who took up the gavel laid down by Representative Theodore O. Burton of Ohio, the convention key-note. His short speech simply emphasized Burton's warning against any third party tendency within the Republican party and ascribed whatever failures have met the administration program in Washington to the insurgent members of the party who, combining with the Democrats, have refused to "go along" with the president.

"Every serious fault of recent legislation and every failure to completely round out a satisfactory program," Mondell said, "could and would have been avoided had there been dependable Republican majorities in congress. The one certain and assured remedy for such a condition is the election of a congress, Republican by a goodly majority, both in name and principle."

Mondell briefly and glowingly reviewed the Republican accomplishments under Harding and Coolidge, and coupled with a short savage criticism of the Democrats.

"If American people were prepared to forget," he said, "the wholly indefensible record of the Democratic party in earlier days, they could not overlook the fact that the most recent record of the Democratic party is one devoid of a single redeeming feature; of scandalous mismanagement, of unwise and indefensible policy who in control and utter lack of definite principle or policy, save that of muck-raking and obstruction."

Cleveland, June 11.—Two spontaneous outbursts of enthusiasm served to enliven the opening session of the Republican national convention.

The first came toward the close of Temporary Chairman Theodore Burton's keynote address when he first mentioned President Coolidge by name. And it really wasn't so much the mention of the name that brought the loud and long cheers as what Mr. Burton said. This was it:

"With some disappointment, as one whose public service has been in a legislative position, truth compels me to say that by far the greater share of our citizenship looks to President Coolidge rather than to congress for leadership."

All over the great public hall delegates and spectators rose to their feet to applaud this statement, and even the senators and representatives who have set themselves in opposition to the president over and over again joined in the hand-clapping.

The second ovation came when Chairman Burton took occasion to comment on the new part the women are taking in national politics. He welcomed them warmly to the party's councils, and the gallant male delegates rose to the occasion with hearty applause.

Chairman Burton's speech, of course, was the chief feature of the day's doings, but there was a lot more to interest the throng that nearly filled the hall. Not the least of these was the band music, led by the incomparable Sousa and accompanied by the beautiful lighting effects provided by the management of the hall and the selections played on the great pipe organ.

National Chairman Adams took charge of proceedings at the start, and after a prayer by Bishop Anderson and the singing of "America," Secretary Lockwood read the call for the convention. Mr. Adams then briefly introduced Congressman Burton, and after the formality of his election turned the gavel over to him and let him talk. The Mr. Burton did at length, and to the satisfaction of the convention, setting forth the well known views of President Coolidge on about all the mooted public questions of the day.

Butler the New General.

Seated by a rail of the platform was William M. Butler, the new general of the party, listening with evident approval, and occasionally holding a whispered conference with some lieutenant. For Mr. Adams was stepping out and Mr. Butler was stepping in. It was to the latter that all came for advice and instructions, and so it had been for days past.

CONVENTION AT CLEVELAND IS ALL COOLIDGE'S

Delegates Are At Call Of The President It Is Evident.

Cleveland, June 11.—The printer responsible for the printing of the booklet containing the list of delegates and their stopping places in Cleveland put in a line which says:

"Where the Delegates Are At."

The delegates did not need a Cleveland printer to tell them where they are at; they know, and they knew before they came to Cleveland. They are at the call of Calvin Coolidge, and they are here to do whatever he wants done. No one else counts in this Cleveland show.

The men who have for years run Republican national conventions are here, to be sure, but they are mere spectators. They are not listened to, or thought about. The one and only man who has influence sits in Washington, and from him the delegates are willing to take instructions, but from him only.

Not since the convention that nominated Roosevelt, when he, like Coolidge, had succeeded to the presidency through the death of his chief, has the Republican party seen such a situation as exists in Cleveland this week. It is so unanimous that it can hardly be called interesting.

Just think of a political convention where you see the picture of only one candidate; a convention without bands and banners and verbal fireworks; without surging crowds of enthusiasts milling about the streets and the hotel corridors hurrahing for favorite candidates. That is not the kind of convention the people of Cleveland wanted; that is not the kind they paid their money for. No matter how satisfactory politically the present condition may be, the people of Cleveland would have preferred the old style of political convention—the kind that New York has drawn.

The people know just what is going to happen, and everything is taken seriously. Still there is one subject that offers a chance for guessing, and that is who will be the vice presidential nominee. The delegates do not know. They want Calvin Coolidge to say whom he wants, and in the end it will be the man he names.

HARRY DAUGHERTY ILL; IS RECOVERING

Cleveland, O., June 11.—Harry M. Daugherty, formerly United States attorney general and now a delegate at large to the Republican convention, had recovered today from an attack of ptomaine poisoning that caused cancellation of a business meeting of the Ohio delegation last night when he could not attend.

Reports that Daugherty was seriously ill were denied by his immediate associates. They said he would participate in today's activities of his delegation.

WOMAN STABBED

Columbus, June 11.—Daisy Simmonds, 23, colored, is in a hospital with a stab wound in her left side. She told police that while standing on a corner she was attacked by another woman whose name she does not know. Her assailant disappeared before police arrived.

BANDITS FLEE

Cincinnati, June 11.—Three bandits attempted to hold up the People's Bank and Savings company's branch in Avondale. The trio entered the bank with drawn revolvers, but fled when the manager of the bank stepped on the burglar alarm.

SENATOR CURTIS OR GEN. HARBORD ARE BEST BETS

Hoover Also Possibility But Not Likely To Be Selected.

Cleveland, O., June 11.—A dramatic eleventh hour effort to swing the Republican national convention entirely away from any vice presidential candidate picked by the conservative eastern crowd of administration supporters was launched just before the convention met for its second day's session to adopt the platform. It was engineered by an influential group of delegates from Iowa, Minnesota, Kansas and the Dakotas, who served notice on the Easterners they do not want Herbert Hoover or James G. Harbord, but rather they demand some one of the stripe of Judge William S. Kenyon, or Senator William E. Borah, who is closer to the needs of the agricultural West.

All the delegates who attended the Winton session took great pains to emphasize this "was no bolt," but merely a group gathering to try to get a western agricultural balance to a ticket they considered eastern in person and spirit. The LaFollette crowd was not invited, only the conservative western agricultural crowd that wants to see either Kenyon, Borah, or Representative J. H. Lacey, of Iowa, leader of the house farm bloc, nominated.

Cleveland, June 11.—Moving along with the swiftness and efficiency of a machine well geared to the road, the Republican national convention went into its second session here today with its platform and agreement just around the corner on the vice presidential candidate—the only questions of outstanding importance before delegates.

There was every indication this morning that by the time the cheering for Calvin Coolidge's nomination had died away in the auditorium, a little group of administration leaders will have succeeded in agreeing on a man who is to be his running mate and that it will be one of three men—Herbert Hoover, General James G. Harbord, who led the marines at Belleau Wood, or Senator Charles Curtis of Kansas.

Shortly before a misty dawn straggled up over Lake Erie, two tired groups of men left smoke filled rooms in the Cleveland and Statler and went to bed. One group had just finished the platform after a lengthy session. The other group had argued most of the night over a vice president, eliminated most of the aspirants, for one reason or another and feeling there was no particular hurry, adjourned to meet again.

The thousands or so other delegates meanwhile were sleeping peacefully in their beds or partaking of the hospitality that Cleveland dishes out to its distinguished guests.

Two vice presidential candidates dropped off the presidential trees like overripe plums in this session in the hotel. Lowden went off—likewise, Borah, both by their own hand. They at last succeeded in convincing the leaders that they meant what they said when they declared they did not want the nomination and would refuse to serve if drafted.

Judge William S. Kenyon, of Iowa, former leader of the senate farm bloc and rated a progressive of the first water, was barely hanging on when the conference broke up. He may figure later, but the chances are against him.

Dr. Marion Leroy Burton, the rangy college president, who will nominate Calvin Coolidge, also was trailing the leading trio of Harbord, Hoover and Curtis. Those whose names have figured in the early reckoning were still huddled back. It was a distinguished company that argued through the smoky haze in the small hours of the morning. In it were cabinet officers, senators and a few outsiders of unquestioned regularity. There were Secretary of War Weeks, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, Postmaster General New, Secretary of the Navy Curtis D. Wilbur; Senator "Jimmy" Wadsworth of New York; "Nick" Longworth of Ohio; Nicholas Murray Butler of New York; James Good of Iowa, western campaign manager for Coolidge; young Theodore Roosevelt.

Others came and went during the night, principally state managers and those familiar with conditions in their respective bailiwicks, who required expert opinion as to the pulling powers of this or that name.

GEORGE B. EARLEY SEEKING OFFICE

George B. Earley, well known Jefferson Township farmer, has declared himself a candidate for the Republican nomination for county commissioner.

He filed his declaration of candidacy papers Tuesday with Earl Short, clerk of the election board, to go before the August primary. J. H. Lacey and W. B. Bryson have also announced their candidacy for the commission board, which insures a contest in the primary.

Mr. Earley has held township offices but has never sought a county elective office before.

BORAH IS CHOICE OF COOLIDGE MEN AS VICE PRESIDENT

Senator Borah, of Idaho, is the first choice of the Coolidge managers as the President's running mate in 1924. All other talk to the contrary, that is the actual fact.

From the most competent quarters came word that the nominee would not be Frank O. Lowden, former Governor of Illinois and prominent contender for the presidential nomination in 1920. The definiteness with which that statement was made seemed to indicate that those in the high places had heard from Mr. Lowden that he meant what he said and would not consider the vice presidential nomination.

Although Senator Borah was at the White House two weeks ago and told the President that he would not accept second place on the ticket, it was learned that the talented Senator from Idaho still held first place in the hearts of the President's friends who wish to go West for a "real Republican" to make up the ticket.

It was indicated that additional pressure was being brought to bear on Senator Borah to have him agree to let his name go before the convention. That was made clear despite the vigorous manner in which the Senator has stated he not only did not desire to be a candidate but had good and sufficient reasons for not wishing to be one.

Anticipating a further rejection by Senator Borah of the Administration overtures, the whispering gallery, which is being transplanted from the banks of the Potomac to the shores of Lake Erie, began sending forth pretty little stories about the possibility of Dr. Marion Leroy Burton, president of the University of Michigan, talking himself into the job. He is to make the Coolidge nominating speech.

Standing six feet two from his heels to his crown of red hair, Dr. Burton would seem to have a fair chance of repeating the history of President Garfield. A truly remarkable speaker, the former Minneapolis newsboy who became a university president, is sure to be one of the really outstanding figures in this convention.

They tell it around Republican headquarters that Dr. Burton will not deliver a political speech. It is presumed, therefore, that he will deal in the metaphor of the little red school house and the old homestead down yonder in Vermont.

Governor Lowden appears to offer the one point of resemblance between Cleveland in 1924 and Chicago in 1920. He has been a pre-convention favorite for the highest office in the contest. There are those a-plenty who will say even yet that Lowden then had the presidential nomination in his pocket until the allegations before a Senate Committee that money went from that pocket to the political sharpshiners in Missouri. He held the national spotlight then. He is still holding it. His drums of 1924 are beating almost as loud a tattoo as they did a few days before the Chicago convention.

Reports from Washington recently to the effect that Governor Lowden had issued notice he would not permit his name to be voted for have been confirmed here by his close personal friends and advisers, who have been in correspondence with him within the past week.

In one letter, Governor Lowden went so far as to urge one of his old-time friends to do everything possible to prevent a vice-presidential nomination, because, so the story goes, he said that if the Cleveland convention nominated him as Mr. Coolidge's running mate a second nomination would be necessary. That is going pretty far. Yet, it was the precise statement which some of the former Governor's friends in Washington, said he made in a letter to members of the Republican National Committee, who were proposing to draft him for the place despite his original declaration.

Mr. Lowden, it has been stated frequently by those known to be in his confidence, has contended that he had no aspirations to be Vice President of the United States. He has been a candidate for White House honors. His friends say he never would consent to seek that honor "through a back door," or "by walking behind the hearse of Calvin Coolidge or anyone else." He has the utmost respect and admiration for the President.

If Borah should be the nominee at Cleveland, take down your map of the United States and see the location, structure, etc., and think of how queer it is. Borah Tuesday announced he would not be a candidate for the vice presidency. Like Lowden he has refused to consider the position but whether he would decline it if the convention nominated him is problematical. Precedent has shown that no man has ever refused the place after it was once given.

A college is a market place
With desk and counter, chair and case,
Where teachers grave and teachers
wise
Display their wares to youthful eyes,
And sell their bits of truth precise
To all who'll come and pay the price.
Yet some idle shoppers there;
They fondle treasures old and rare,
And pass along and fail to buy,
Thinking the cost is much too high.
Some for the cheaper bargains look,
Hoping to snatch from many a book
Its store of knowledge, or of wit,
Without the toll of reading it.
Whenever I'm in a college town
And walk its campus up and down,
It seems to me that I can hear
The tradesmen's voices ringing clear.

Many housekeepers can lima and string beans by the One Period Cold Pack Method with perfect success. But to be absolutely sure of success, one should use the Intermittent Cold Pack Method.

Prepare the beans for immediate serving when taken from the can; that is, shell lima beans and cut string beans in short lengths as for the table. Put them into a cheese-cloth bag and plunge into a boiling soda-bath (use one teaspoon of baking soda to one gallon of water). Let remain in this soda-bath for three minutes if the beans are young and tender, otherwise for five minutes. Then remove bag from the bath and plunge at once into a cold mild brine made by using one tablespoon of salt for every quart of water. Leave in this brine for only 30 seconds, then remove, drain and pack the beans in hot, sterilized glass jars.

By "sterilized glass jars" I mean jars which have been placed on their sides in cold water, brought to the boiling point, and allowed to remain in this boiling water for 15 minutes; drain and keep hot by boiling water. Jars not kept hot in this way, may crack when hot water is put into them with the vegetable.

When you have packed the beans in the jar, fill the jar to within one-half inch of top with a boiling-hot fresh brine made by adding two and one-half ounces of salt to every gallon of boiling water used. Put on new rubbers, sterilized glass caps, and put top wire up over cap but do not press down side wire; this is called "partially sealing" the jar. Now stand the jar on a rack or a thickly-folded cloth in your wash-boiler in boiling-hot water which rises about an inch over jar-tops. Watch the water and make a note of the exact minute when it begins to boil again after the jars are in it.

The water must boil around the jars for just one hour, then the jars must be taken out, completely soaked, and stood in ordinary room-temperature overnight. In the morning they must be partially sealed (that is, the side wire must be pushed up) and the jars returned to the canner, as before, for another hour of boiling; remove from canner, completely seal, and let stand in room-temperature overnight. On the third morning again release the side wire, put jars back in canner for an hour, remove, and completely seal. The canning is now finished. (In all, the jars have been "processed" in the boiling water for three hours—one hour on each of three days). Label and store.

RECREATION

Recreation really means to create. In other words, to shake ourselves free from our dusty habits and start all over again—with a new suit, perhaps.

Anything is recreation that makes us newer in thought or body.

There are those who get great recreation from reading. There are those who can only get recreation from sports and out-of-door play. Others get their recreation from some "hobby."

The manner or method matters little. But we must all get recreation in some way, if we are to remain strong and alert.

Viscount Grey, in his little book on "Recreation," speaks of reading, sports, delightful walks into the woods where the birds sang, of literature in all its phases, and of the many delights of companionship. Speaking of the "dark days" of the war, he says that he "found some support in the steady progress unchanged of the beauty of the seasons."

Wherever beauty is, there may be found recreation.

I know a man in whose presence I feel, re-created. Just to walk out among the trees and hear the birds give their familiar songs over and over again and to breathe the pungent breath of the flowers into your lungs, is to give recreation to the soul.

You must find play in your work if you would grow. And you must grow if you would find life kind.

When you think happily you are treating your mind and heart to recreation.

WLW WILL CHANGE ITS WAVE LENGTH

Cincinnati, June 11—After the last part of the week WLW, the radio broadcasting station owned by the Crosley Radio Corporation, will be operated on a wave length of 423 meters, the same as is used by KPO, Oakland, Cal. WLW and WBAV, of Columbus, Ohio, will divide time.

This new arrangement was announced by F. W. Edwards, Radio Inspector at Detroit, following conferences at Washington last week among Department of Commerce officials and managers WLW, WSAI and WFBW.

Thus finds its written in Cincinnati's radio controversy, which arose over the division of time with the entry of WFBW, new Hotel Alms station, into the broadcasting field a month ago.

"I had not eaten food for 10 days and was slowly starving to death. Given up five doctors, I tried a bottle of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy, which gave relief at once. I am 75 years old and would have died but your wonderful medicine. The jaundice is all gone and I am gaining appetite and strength every day." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. Sayre and Hemphill and druggists everywhere.

MERCHANTS ADVERTISE 'REAL OLD FASHIONED DOLLAR DAY' FOR THURSDAY OF THIS WEEK

People who say a dollar will not go as far as it used to, are evidently not thinking about Dollar Day in Xenia, which will be observed Thursday with bargains that will make the purchasing power of the dollar seem doubled for that day at least.

Merchants have not so generally or so thoroughly entered into the spirit of Dollar Day for several years and their combined efforts in this direction this year insures one of the biggest bargain feasts of recent years.

The late spring may have had some effect on Xenia merchants, who have undoubtedly suffered from the bad weather that has prevailed during the spring selling season. For this reason business men say they have unusual bargains that they will have to rid their shelves of at a sacrifice and Dollar Day has been selected as moving day for this superfluous stock.

The advertising columns of this paper have been carrying reams of advertising of these merchants. Business men who do not have articles they can offer for a dollar, are making other offers and cuts on other goods that broadens and extends the meaning of Dollar Day to a more complete bargaining sense.

Dollar Day therefore, will not only be a day when dollars will come into their own in Xenia stores but this year at least, it will be a day when several dollars put together will find themselves with more purchasing power than possibly twice that many would on any other day. Merchants are calling to the public to help them get rid of spring and summer stock, and in order that their appeal will not go unheard, they are offering bargains that are bound to tempt the prospective purchaser.

CHECK FORGED ON LOCAL COMPANY

The Greene County Lumber Company has been made the victim in three forged checks which came to light recently, it has been learned.

Emerson F. Gardiner, Gardiner Sales Company, 319 Wayne Avenue, Dayton, told Dayton police Tuesday night that he had cashed a check drawn on the account of the Greene County Lumber Company in the Xenia National Bank for $22.50 which had proved worthless.

Officials of the lumber company here advised him the check was a forgery. The check was signed by the Greene County Lumber Company by "J. C. Boyd", and payable to "John Miller". The other two checks forged on the lumber company have also been signed "J. C. Boyd", it is said.

TRAINS HELD UP

Train schedules on the Pennsylvania Railroad were thrown out of order when a washout of twenty feet of track between Waynesville and Spring Valley, made the main line between Xenia and Cincinnati impassable for a time. Trains were detoured through Dayton and were run off schedule until the tracks were repaired.

NEWSPAPER MEN MEET TO FORM CODE OF ETHICS

Columbus, June 11.—Proceeding on the hypothesis that newspaper advertising exercises an important influence in every community, members of the Association of Newspaper Advertising Executives, and the Association of Newspaper Classified Advertising Managers, in convention here, took initial steps in the framing of a general code of ethics for handling newspaper advertising.

Action in this direction was stimulated by a speech of F. P. Carroll, Indianapolis, president of the Executive association, who urged the character of newspaper advertising "be brought to the highest standard of attainment."

MONEY AT WORK

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments

BUSINESS PARTNERS SHOULD NOT BE TOO MUCH ALIKE

Ideal business partners are men who balance each other. They usually have different business qualifications without any characteristics that cause friction.

After a man gets a business started successfully the chances are that he will begin to look around for a partner. He himself is probably a good salesman and an optimist. However, he needs a balance if his business is to grow and become more profitable.

He does not need another salesman nor another optimist. At the same time if he gets the extreme opposite to his character, as for instance a short-sighted man inclined to be stingy in expenditures, there is sure to be friction, and further progress of the business will stop.

In this case, a conservative, far-sighted financier and buyer would just about complete the balance for a highly successful partnership.

In picking a partner therefore, it is wise to avoid a man with qualifications similar to your own. However, care must be taken to get a man who will balance the partnership and not act as a brake.

BOYS ELECTROCUTED

Dayton, O., June 10.—Robert Boyer, 10, and Robert Wilmer, 8, died of burns received when they touched a heavily charged wire at McCook field. The boys were climbing a pole when they came in contact with the wire and fell 20 feet to the ground.

THREE YOUTHS TO HANG

Los Angeles, June 10.—Three men, all under 21, were sentenced to be hanged for the murder of Policeman Glenn C. Bond during an attempted robbery. They were: Ed Montijo, Tom Bailey and Louis Perry.

COOLIDGE WON'T HINT AT CHOICE FOR RUNNING MATE

Washington, June 11.—President Coolidge wants the Republican convention at Cleveland to name a vice presidential candidate without any suggestions from him. It was declared officially at the White House yesterday.

It was announced the president would have no communication to send to Cleveland and that he desired the party leaders and the delegates there to feel free to carry out their own wishes.

ATMOSPHERE OF CONVENTION NEAR SACRED FOR TIME

Convention Hall Cleveland, Ohio, June 11.—An atmosphere fringing on the sacred, overspread the convention hall and transformed it into a momentary cathedral Tuesday when the invocation was pronounced by the chaplain.

All but a few strategically located electric lights were extinguished. A hazy semi-darkness softened faces and objects. From the roof great bars of diagonal lights slanted down and made floss of the clergyman's white hair. Save for his voice there was a hush of no length or breadth. Cigar munching committeemen and gesticulating delegates there to put Cal over, laid that matter aside for a few moments and became reverent men and women bowing to a leader who knows no party.

MODISH MITZI—Mitzi caught The Bride's Bouquet.

BY JAY V. JAY

Mitzi caught the bridal bouquet, which was somewhat of a consolation—it's hard to have one of your best friends take all your space in the papers week after week. But at last Adelaide is married and off for her honeymoon.

Polly is pelting them with rice and Adelaide looks extremely—Smart in her new silk suit of Lanvin green. It is a dress and jacket, of course, and is trimmed with fine tucks all over it. The hat is Milan trimmed with silk to match the suit. Harry is doing his noble best to look as though he had been married for years and years.

BIDS FOR MASONIC TEMPLE INDICATE MOVE IS ASSURED

Masons were practically assured Tuesday night that they would be able to build their proposed new temple, when bids received by the temple association indicated the total cost would not exceed the estimate.

Eleven bids for general contracting and twelve sub-bids, covering plumbing, heating and electricity, were opened by the association but were not considered at that meeting. Two members of the association were absent.

The bids were turned over to Frederick Mueller, Hamilton, architect who has prepared plans for the proposed temple, who will tabulate the bids and make a report on them to the association within a week or ten days. The association will then make recommendations that will be presented to the lodge as a whole. The association estimated the cost of the building at $115,000 and conducted a campaign to finance the building with that figure as a basis. The fact that a hasty summary of the bids indicated the structure can be built within the estimate and the amount subscribed in the campaign, has reassured association members that the proposed temple will become a reality.

The proposed building will be erected on the E. S. Foust lot, South Detroit, adjacent to the Gazette Bldg., and the old Gallagher Building, now owned by Mr. Foust. It will be of two-story construction and entirely devoted to lodge purposes.

KENYON FAVORED BY WESTERNERS FOR 2ND PLACE

Ohio Delegates May Give Support To Dawes It Is Indicated.

Cleveland, June 11.—With Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois, eliminated from the race for the vice presidential nomination, there was a turn of western delegates toward Judge William S. Kenyon of Iowa.

Lowden reiterated his statement that he was not a candidate for the vice presidential nomination and has declared he would not accept if nominated. Talk of drafting Herbert Hoover for second place began to subside when friends of Senator Hiram Johnson let it be known that the California senator would regard Hoover's selection as a direct slap in the face. The political enmity between Johnson and Hoover is said to be stronger now than in 1920, when they contested for the California delegation. With recollections in mind of the split in the Republican party in California in 1916, the Coolidge managers are said to be giving heed to the Johnson men in their opposition to Hoover.

Senator Frank Willis of Ohio was being mentioned in some quarters for the vice presidency. While Willis was out of line with President Coolidge on the soldier bonus, otherwise he has been one of the most consistent supporters of the administration in congress.

Iowa renewed its activity for Representative J. J. Dickinson, with Representative J. W. Good as its second choice. Nebraska met secretly and swore loyalty to Charles G. Dawes. Utah threw General Frank T. Hines' hat into the ring and Indiana announced it was now clear sailing for Senator Jim Watson.

Ohio delegates, at first inclined to regard Colonel Dawes dubiously, are now warming up to the proposition. One delegate had a resolution to offer at the meeting of the delegation pledging the delegation to Dawes for second place on the national ticket, but the leaders feared that it might be premature. There seems no doubt now that if his name is presented Ohio will get behind his candidacy.

Senator Borah of Idaho sent instructions to Cleveland that his name be withdrawn if it were presented to the Republican national convention as a vice presidential candidate. Borah urged former Senator William S. Kenyon for the nomination, and it was said he had recommended him at a conference with President Coolidge.

Senator Borah communicated his wishes in a telegram to John W. Hart, national committeeman for Idaho. "If my name is presented to the convention," the telegram said, "please ask delegation to promptly withdraw same and positively decline for me. Make no mistake about this."

LOVE-OR FAME?

WHO'S WHO AND WHAT'S HAPPENED.

DOROTHY LANE, who wants to go into the movies, receives a letter from Persis Grant, an old friend living in New York.

II—THE CHANCE OF A LIFETIME.

PERSIS GRANT had come to Oakwood three years before to live with her aunt and finish her high-school course. She and I were dear friends—she was just about my only chum.

My only chum the year she lived in our town. But she left as soon as she'd finished school; she said she'd got to earn her living and was going to a big city to do it. She'd taken the business course at school, so she went into her uncle's office in Chicago—and worked awfully hard. Then, after a year, she got an offer to go to New York as secretary to an awfully rich woman who was interested in all sorts of public movements—prison reform and things like that. Persis loved being in New York, and when the rich woman suddenly decided to go abroad Persis got a job in an advertising office—she wrote me that she'd become a pretty good secretary—and got a room at the Y. W. C. A.

I simply devoured that letter of hers. It was so awfully interesting. "I do wish you could come down here and visit me," she wrote. "I'm a householder now—think of it! The Y. W. wasn't exactly what I wanted, so I've taken a nice big room that costs me a week's salary each month, and I get my own breakfasts and sometimes my dinners and have a view of Stuyvesant Square and am not far from Fifth Avenue. And what do you think—I've gone into the movies! Not regularly—I still have my stenographic job—but we did the advertising copy at our agency for some big feature pictures, and the man who made them and who was a friend of my boss' took all the girls from the office out to the studio one night when they were working there, and let us be entertained with him. Honestly, Dorothy, I never had more fun in my life. I can't possibly describe the studio to you, or the way they did things there or anything else—it was too perfectly wonderful. But I can tell you one thing: if I can possibly manage it—and having a big producer know the man I work for sorts of helps—I'm going into the movies."

I walked straight down to the dining room when I'd read that, and I said to father and mother: "Persis Grant wants me to come to New York to visit her, and I'd rather go than anything else in the world. Can't I?"

Well, there was a long discussion. My sister thought I ought to be allowed to, and mother said it was time I saw the East, but father thought it would be terrible to let me go off there alone, with only Persis to look after me. I was firm, though. "You always said Persis had more sense than lots of girls twice her age," I reminded him. "Besides, I'm seventeen; if I'm ever going to have a good time I ought to begin."

"But you go to parties here—and have lots of beaux—" father began.

"They're all just the boys I've known forever," I interrupted. "And, anyway, I don't want to just get married and settle down here like Sue did." You should have heard my sister and her husband exclaim at that! "I want to see something of the country before I do that. Just let me go for a month, dad, you know I didn't get that trip to Niagara Falls when I graduated because we gave Sue the chest of silver for a wedding present."

That won't father over, and he finally said I could go. He still felt sort of uneasy over letting me rush off to New York with just Persis to look after me, though, as I reminded him, she's twenty, but at last he gave in. If he'd known that I was going with the determination to get into motion pictures he'd have been three times as uneasy. But then, in that event, he'd never have let me go at all.

I wrote Persis at once that I was coming in two weeks. And I spent the whole evening doing my hair the way Gloria Swanson does here, though I'd about decided to have it bobbed as soon as I got away from home—I thought it would look like Constance Talmadge's probably. And I look a little like Constance, anyway. But I could hardly hold the comb and brush, I was so excited. To think that I was going to have a chance to get into the movies!

Tomorrow—At the Door of a Studio.

BOYS ARE GUESTS AT ROTARY PARTY

Twenty-five boys of the city were guests of the Xenia Rotary Club, at a steak roast and "movie" show, at the Greene County Lumber Company, Tuesday evening.

C. W. Murphy, club member, turned the lumber yard over to the club and its guests, after plans to hold the affair at the DeWine cottage north of Xenia, were abandoned following heavy rains.

Before luncheon was prepared the boys staged a ball game. An orchestra furnished entertainment during the evening, and four films were shown by R. Hayes Hamilton, lecturer.

The main feature film showed the Stevens' goat farm, at Chicago, featuring the famous pedigreed Toggenburg goats. The film depicted the annual sale at the farm, where the goats brought as high as $1,600 per head.

A special education film was shown for the boys, entitled "Informing a Nation," and showed the editing, compiling, and making-up of the latest Encyclopedia Americana. The film program was augmented with two splendid comedies.
